RE: Status of Mine, Ron Farnsworth, Mirrorimage Mine, S/049/026, Utah County, Utah

During site inspections made with Ron Farnsworth in September 1995, we talked briefly about the Mirrorimage mine site, S/049/026. This is a black limestone from a quarry west of Utah Lake. The map provided in the notice shows the mine site location, but does not show how to get there. Ron took the time to draw a brief map and explain how to get to this particular site, so that we can go out and take a look at that site some time. Right now, of the three permits he has, he feels the Mirrorimage probably has the greatest potential to be opened up and developed.

He is concerned about the amount of historic mining and quarrying that has been done at this site and would like us to inspect the site before he does go in and start mining. He does not want to be held responsible for the historic disturbance.
